

Edgy Teen Fiction

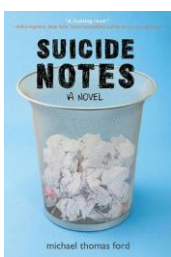

(Ages 12-18)

I Heart You, You Haunt Me

By Lisa Schroeder

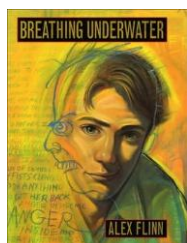

Ava can't see or touch him but she hears his voice like whispers in her mind. Despite what others think Ava knows without a doubt that her true love, Jackson, is back from the dead.

Suicide Notes

By Michael Thomas Ford

Jeff refuses to relate to the other teens in a psych ward where he's been placed after a suicide attempt, but he'll soon have to confront some truths about himself.

Breathing Underwater

By Alex Flinn

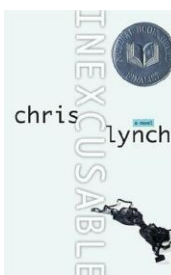

Sentenced to a family violence class, the outwardly perfect Nick must face the fact that his father's anger and violence have rubbed off on him.

Go Ask Alice

By Anonymous

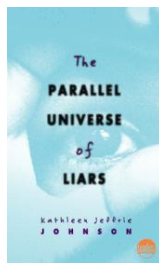

The diary of a teenager whose life is forever changed (and eventually destroyed) by a terrifying addiction to drugs.

Inexcusable

By Chris Lynch

Keir is a good guy. Ask anyone and they'll tell you that. So how could he have done what Gigi says he did?

The Parallel Universe of Liars

By Kathleen J. Johnson

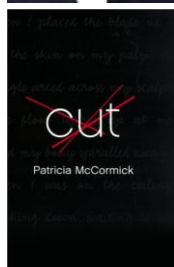

Surrounded by terrible role models, Robin discovers an affair between her step-mother and hot next-door-neighbor Frankie, and soon falls under Frankie's spell herself.

Because I Am Furniture

By Thalia Chaltas

Anke constantly witnesses her father's abuse at home. But when she makes the volleyball team at school, she slowly begins to find her voice.

Cut

By Patricia McCormick

Believing herself responsible for her brother's illness, Callie begins a self-destructive course that lands her at the Sea Pines psychiatric hospital.

After

By Amy Efav

Perfect Devon is charged with attempted murder when it becomes clear an infant left in the trash is hers. But she's still in deep denial about her pregnancy.

Living Dead Girl

By Elizabeth Scott

Kidnapped and kept captive for five years, the renamed "Alice" is now ordered by her captor Ray to find a replacement for herself.